Achievement through Initiative

By SHANNON OSTLER and KIRK MITCHELL
Universe Staff Writers

They have planted their roots across the nation and around the world, but today many alumni are coming "home" to BYU. They return to renew friendships and recall fond memories of college days, but mostly to rejuvenate a spirit—the spirit of loyalty they feel for their alma mater.

For one of those former students, Dee Chipman, a 1943 BYU graduate, Homecoming is "a renewal."

"I think it's important to renew old acquaintances," he said. During his years at BYU, Homecoming activities were similar to those today, but they were carried out "on a much smaller scale," Chipman said. Each year there was a parade, picnic, "special assemblies," a dance in the old Women's Gym, and, of course, the football game.

Chipman was a quarterback for the Cougar football team for three years. He said BYU's football team came within one game of giving the university its first conference championship during his last year of school. They also tied the University of Utah and Colorado University, which he said was a "tremendous accomplishment" in those days when BYU was the third largest university in the state and considered an "also ran" in sports.

"I think I was the first BYU quarterback ever drafted by the National Football League," Chipman said. The Washington Redskins drafted him, but World War II put an end to his football career.

Chipman, who is a retired journalist from Bountiful, worked for The Desert News for 42 years. For 25 of those years he was a sports writer. He's still a Cougar football fan, and he says BYU's football success "makes all us old grads real glad."

"I think from what I've seen at this school in recent years, there's more school spirit and more to be proud about," he said.

"It's always a tremendous lift and a thrill, primarily to see the growth and development as years pass."

Chipman's accomplishments in football and his long career in journalism make him a good example of what Homecoming is all about this year.

Achievement through Initiative, this year's Homecoming theme, was chosen for a dual purpose. "We tried to choose something that's representative of the university as a whole," said Krista Thornock, executive assistant for the Homecoming Committee.

"Achievement through Initiative exemplifies not only the athletic aspect of the university, but also the academic," she said. One of the committee's goals this year has been to make the activities more visible to students, faculty, administrators and the community. "We want everyone to know it's Homecoming and to catch the spirit and get excited," said Thornock.

The annual fall celebration, which is traditionally a time for alumni to come home, has been compared to a "family reunion" by Ronald Hyde, BYU assistant executive vice president.

Besides being a time of celebration for the students, Homecoming is an important time for student interaction with alumni, said Hyde. Events such as the Honored lecture series and Career Connections "present a time for nice exchange" between students and alumni who have been successful in their professions.

"These are the future leaders of the world," said David Hoopes, an investment manager from Moraga, Calif., who has returned to BYU for the first time in 19 years to participate in the lecture series.

"It has rekindled great old memories," Hoopes said. "It's made me feel young again."

It is said that even a smell can bring back a memory, and that is true for Hoopes, who said: "The smell of the air did not change; it brought back memories of when I was here before."

U.S. F14 jets intercept pane carrying hijackers

WASHINGTON (AP) — American warplanes intercepted an Egyptian aircraft carrying four Palestinian hijackers, forcing the plane to land in Sicily where the gunman have been handed over to Italian authorities, the White House spokesman said late Thursday night.

Larry Speakes said that "in a matter of hours" the United States would "pursue prompt extradition" so that prosecution could be undertaken here for the murder of 69-year-old American tourist Leon Klinghoffer.

"This operation was conducted without firing a shot," Larry Speakes told reporters. He said the four Palestinians, who hijacked the Italian luxury cruise ship Achille Lauro, were in Italian custody "for appropriate legal proceedings."

Asked what the Palestinians said as they were taken from the plane, Speakes said, "I judge they probably had an explosive or two."

Speakes said President Reagan approved the interception plan at midday, giving general approval while visiting a Sara Lee baking plant in Chicago and giving final go ahead while returning to Washington aboard Air Force One.

The intercept took place immediately north of Egypt, above International waters of the Mediterranean as the hijackers hoped they were flying to safety.

The Palestinians, who surrendered to Egyptian authorities on Wednesday, had bargained "the safe passage," and the airplane was heading for Tunisia.

"The president directed that U.S. forces intercept the aircraft," Speakes said, part of a U.S. policy calling for "apprehension, prosecution and punishment," of terrorists.

"The United States will seek extradition on grounds an American citizen was murdered," Speakes said. "... Our law permits it."

He said there was no agreement with the Italian government on the extradition request. Italian authorities have said they want to prosecute, since the cruise liner was sailing under an Italian flag when the hijackers took control. A government source reinforced that view Thursday night.

During the intercepted flight, according to administration sources, the Tunisian government — apparently heading a U.S. request to deny sanctuary to the hijackers —refused the Egyptian plane permission to land.

U. S. F14 jets, coming off the carrier Saratoga, intercepted the Egyptian 737 aircraft as it headed toward Tunisia from Cairo, Speakes said.

At Sicily's Sigonella airport near Catania at 12:30 a.m. (5:30 p.m. EDT), "the (Egyptian) aircraft landed with Italian consent and was surrounded by American and Italian troops," he said.

"I think the president is extremely pleased that this was a successful mission. It is one that was carefully thought out, carefully planned, carefully coordinated."

"... It should send a message and a strong one, that we will do what is necessary to apprehend those who are involved in terrorism. We will do it again, if the opportunity presents itself."

Earlier in the day, Reagan demanded that the four pirates be turned over to authorities for prosecution "as the murderers that they are." Klinghoffer was in a wheelchair when he was apparently attacked and then thrown overboard as the hijackers pursued their demands for release of Palestinian terrorists held in Israel.

Yul Brynner dies of cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Yul Brynner, the man who was king for a record 4,625 performances in the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "The King and I," died Thursday after a two-year battle with lung cancer. He was 65.

With him at The New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center were his fourth wife, Kathy Lee, and his four children, said Josh Ellis, a family spokesman.

He faced death with a dignity and strength that astounded his doctors. He fought like a lion," Ellis said.

Lights on marquees and theaters along Broadway were to be dimmed at 5 p.m. Thursday "in the king's memory," Ellis said.

He was a charming and amusing man of many talents although, of course, he will be identified as the King forever," Deborah Kerr, who starred with Brynner in the 1956 movie version of "The King and I," said from her villa in Marbella, Spain.

In his thousands of performances as the king of Siam, Brynner was lord and master over 189 wives, 447 children and 12 Annas during 34 years of stage performances that ended in June. More than 3.6 million theatergoers are estimated to have seen him in the role on Broadway and another 4.5 million on the road.

"He had so many facets as an actor. And of course, he grew in the part of the King. He became the king," said Mary Martin, who recommended Brynner to Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein for the job as the monarch ruler of Siam.

Brynner shaved his head for the part, and it became his trademark after the show opened on Broadway in 1951.

The role brought him a Tony in 1952, an Oscar in 1957 for the film version, and a special Tony in June, which Martin presented. Brynner played his final performance as the monarch June 30 in New York at the end of a national tour that had lasted almost 44 years.

Brynner made more than three dozen movies, including "The Ten Commandments," "The Magnificent Seven," "Anastasia," "Taras Bulba" and "Westworld."

Brynner's final tour in the musical was interrupted in September 1983 when the actor, who at one time smoked five packs of cigarettes a day, began treatment for lung cancer in Los Angeles.

Reagan chooses two to fill positions on federal board

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, splitting the difference between the monetarist and supply-side schools' economic views, picked Wayne D. Angell and Manuel H. Johnson on Thursday to fill two seats on the powerful Federal Reserve Board.

Johnson, assistant treasury secretary for economic policy, is a follower of the supply-side school that believes in the need for sharp cuts in tax rates and an easy monetary policy to stimulate economic growth.

Angell, economics professor at Ottawa University in Kansas, is a monetarist who advocates steady money growth as a way of guarding against inflation.

The nominations must be confirmed by the Senate.

With the selection of Johnson and Angell, Reagan has appointed a majority of the seven-member board, which controls the nation's money supply. Earlier, he named Preston Martin, the Fed's vice chairman, and Martha Steger, and also reappointed Paul Volcker to a second four-year term as chairman.

Johnson was picked for a 14-year term beginning next Feb. 1, succeeding J. Charles Partee. Angell was named to fill the unexpired term of Lyle Gramley, who resigned. It expires in 1994.

Johnson was a key architect of the tax cuts enacted in Reagan's first year in office and he has often criticized Bolkecker's money policies. Angell was a supply-siders fault Bolcker for pursuing a tight-money policy which drove up interest rates and plunged the country into a recession.

Angell had the powerful backing of Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.

$1.9 billion sale of arms to Jordan 'an absolute necessity,' says Shultz

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State George Shultz told skeptical lawmakers Thursday that approval of the Reagan administration's $1.9 billion arms sale to Jordan is an "absolute necessity" for ultimate success in the search for peace in the Middle East.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Shultz said Jordan's King Hussein has taken "courageous moves" toward opening negotiations with Israel, and added that from the king's point of view, "You like to feel that peace has friends, and the friends of peace will stand with you."

But several members of the committee challenged Shultz's description of events in the Middle East. "I disagree that the king of Jordan has made meaningful moves," said Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn. "He puts a number of obstacles in the way of peace."

Shultz' 90-minute appearance before the committee represented the beginning of what is expected.

BYU professors outline why families succeed

JODI EILER
Universe Staff Writer

Common goals, communication, and unity are qualities that bind successful families together. For the past two years, Philip Kunz, professor of sociology and William Dyer, emeritus professor of organizational behavior at BYU, have been researching the traits and characteristics of effective Latter-day Saint families. The results show twelve traditions that make a difference in an effective family.

Kunz outlined the characteristics that seem to bind strong effective families Wednesday night at Family Living Center Lecture in the ELWC Ballroom.

The most important conditions are love and unity the family, Kunz said. "Unity was built by family members being supportive of other members activities."

Kunz quoted one mother interviewed who said, "commitment to the gospel brings about good things in our home, our whole life revolves around a gospel."

"Talking seems to be the glue in a close family," said Kunz. "Very little formal teaching, such as Family Home Evening, takes place within the home. Most teaching is spontaneous and informal."

Disciplining through communication also seemed build positive relationships, he said. Showing appreciation was frequently more effective than punishing.

Having support from the extended family also seemed important. "Many children looked to their aunts, particularly to their grandparents, as role models," said Kunz. "During times of adversity family members can turn to one another."

Disciplining through communication also seemed build positive relationships, he said. Showing appreciation was frequently more effective than punishing.

Orson Welles, age 70, dies; leaves legacy of classics

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Orson Welles, who created the film classic "Citizen Kane" and a radio tale about a Martian invasion that terrified millions of listeners, died Thursday at his home, authorities said. He was 70.

"The cause of death appears to be natural in origin," said Donald Messerle, assistant chief of coroner's investigations.

The actor's death was reported to the coroner's office at 11 a.m. by Hollywood Division police, he said.

"He was found this morning by his driver at his residence," said police Sgt. Russell Kuster. "We got the call at about 10 a.m. He'd been suffering from diabetes and a heart ailment, his doctor said. The death is being handled by the doctor because it was of natural causes."

Welles panicked America in 1938 with his Mercury Theater of the Air radio adaptation of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds." Listeners believed the nation really was being invaded by Martians.

Gov. Bangerter reiterates support of CUP; urges donations to earthquake relief effort

Utah Gov. Norman H. Bangerter, in his monthly news conference on Thursday, reiterated his support of the Central Utah Project (CUP) and asked Utahns to donate to the Mexican relief effort.

The proposed Jordanelle Dam, near Heber city, is the final link to the Bonneville Unit of the CUP. On Nov. 19, voters will decide if a $335 million supplemental repayment contract will be awarded to build the dam.

The Federal Bureau of Reclamation, which is building the $2.1 billion unit, says completion depends on approval of the extra funds.

He also stunned the film world in 1941 with his first venture in film, "Citizen Kane," based on the life of publisher William Randolph Hearst. Welles directed, wrote and starred in the film, winning an Oscar for writing. He was also nominated for directing and acting Oscars.

"On seeing it for the first time," critic Penelope Houston wrote, "one got a sense that if the cinema could do that, it could do anything."

Other credits included the classic "Othello," "The Magnificent Ambersons," "The Third Man," "A Touch of Evil," "The Lady from Shanghai" and dozens of others in a career that spanned more than 40 years.

Born May 6, 1915, in Kenosha, Wis., Welles exhibited his precocity at an early age: reading at 2, playing the violin for Stravinsky and Ravel at 7, playing Shakespeare in modern dress at 10. By 16 he was acting in Dublin. He appeared in New York, founding the Mercury Theater with John Houseman in 1937.

Mercury's dramas on the stage and radio electrified the country, especially the 1938 "The War of the Worlds."

"Citizen Kane" proved the high point of Welles' Hollywood career. It plunged Welles into controversy, and studios were wary of a filmmaker who delighted in tweaking the Establishment nose.

His career at RKO ended in disillusion as he saw his "The Magnificent Ambersons" and "Journey Into Fear" miserably edited and discarded on double-bills. He starred with his second wife, Rita Hayworth, in "The Lady From Shanghai" and made a low-budget "Macbeth."

Further disillusioned, he moved to Europe where he hired out as an actor ("The Black Rose," "The Third Man") to finance his own projects, such as "Othello" and "Chimes at Midnight."

He returned to the United States in the 1970s with his third wife.

In 1975, Welles received the Lifetime Achievement Award of the merican Film Institute, and last year the Directors Guild gave him its highest honor, the D.W. Griffith award.

Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said Tuesday, a probe into the financing of the project "offers convincing evidence that the Bureau of Reclamation is more interested in making cozy deals with local interests than protecting all Americans from unjustified budget-busting subsidies."

In reply, Bangerter said, "There is a broad bipartisan effort regardless of political affiliation to get the CUP finished. We feel it is critical to the state in the long range."

In an appeal to Utahns for contributions to the Mexican earthquake victims, Bangerter said.

High school impostor attempts football action

ROCKFORD, Minn. (AP)—When John Hausen arrived a week late to Rockford High School, no one thought it unusual. He was transferring from overseas, he said, and was eager to be on the football team.

But when officials did some checking, they found that the man was Johnathon House, a 1984 graduate from nearby Monticello High School who was on leave from the Army.

Former BYU Honors student says excellence is important

DEVON ZUMBRENNEN
Universe Staff Writer

The test of performance is not to do things adequately, but to do them with a high standard of excellence, says a BYU alumnus and three-time White House aide.

Rodger B. Porter, 39, graduated magna cum laude from the Honors program and was valedictorian when he graduated from BYU in 1969. He was the president of the Honors Program Student Council, president of the Key Honor Fraternity and president of the Archon Honor society.

Yet his achievements at BYU were not all academic. He was the youngest undergraduate to letter in tennis, a sport he has played since he was 11 years old.

"BYU was a superb experience for me," said Porter. "I can't think of a day that I didn't thoroughly enjoy while at the 'Y'."

Receives fellowships

After leaving BYU Porter continued to be a success. He received a Woodrow Wilson Fellow and a Rhodes Scholarship upon graduation, the latter of which he accepted. He attended Queen's College at Oxford University and received a bachelor's in philosophy (politics) in 1971.

Before returning to the United States, however, he accepted a position as assistant dean of Queen's College, the first American ever to have this honor.

In 1972, Porter was accepted to Harvard University and received his master's and doctoral degrees in 1974. He was also the recipient of the Harvard Graduate Fellowship and Teaching Fellow in the Department of Government.

Porter said he believes doing the minimum is not enough. "Excellence requires more than just meeting the requirement," he said.

In the summer of 1974, Porter headed for the White House, where he had previously been accepted as a White House Fellow. Porter accepted a position on the staff of Vice President Gerald Ford.

On his way from Boston to Washington to begin his Fellowship, Porter heard of President Nixon's resignation on his car radio. His first assignment with the new president (Ford) was a secretary of the Presidential Transition Team.

Begins long stay

This was to be the beginning of a long stay in Washington D.C., for Porter. At the end of his Fellowship year, he was appointed special assistant to the President for Economic Affairs.

Porter also served as a presidential aide to former President Jimmy Carter and is now an aide in the Reagan administration.

Reagan appoints '57 BYU graduate David Sam to be U.S. federal judge

LYNN HOWLETT
Universe Staff Writer

Utah's 4th District Court Judge David Sam, a BYU alumnus, recently nominated by President Reagan to serve as a U.S. District Court Judge, tributes his love for law to his parent's love of freedom.

Sam's father, Andrew Sirb, and mother, Flora, were born on the same day, Feb. 25, 1894, in a town of Belu, Romania. In 1913 the two were married and soon made plans to move to the United States.

"One of my parents' great dreams was to raise their children in America," Sam said.

He said when his father left Romania on foot, "he knew the mother knowing that he might never see again, but the freedoms available made it one of the easiest decisions my father ever made."

After many trials, Sirb arrived at Ellis Island and sent for his wife. He changed his name to Sam in Gary, Ind., where he was naturalized. After their reunion in Indiana, Andrew and Flora raised their family.

Judge Sam was born in 1933, the youngest of 11 children. He was raised in Portage, Ind. He became a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at age 18. He served a mission in the Northern Central States Mission, Sam graduated from BYU in 1957 with a bachelor's degree in science and was married that same year to the former Betty Jean Brennan of Grand Junction, Colo.

Sam received his law degree from the University of Utah in 1960 and passed the Utah state bar exam that November.

After serving in the military, Sam moved his family to Duchesne, Utah where he worked as an attorney for 12 years. During that time he was appointed to be the Duchesne county attorney, and also served as the County Commissioner.

In addition to his civic duties, Sam has served as a bishop, stake president, Mission Training Center branch president and has taught at BYU.

He was appointed to the Utah 4th District Court in July 1976 by Gov. Calvin Rampton.

Sam says he is happy about his recent nomination to the U.S. District Court. He was selected by the Federal Nominating Commission, and was one of five to have his name submitted to President Reagan in February for approval.

President Reagan called him personally to let him know of the appointment that would make him a U.S. federal judge.

He was then called to Washington D.C. where he was interviewed by the Senate Judiciary Committee. Sam said the Senate must approve the appointment and then it will be only a few weeks before he is sworn in as a federal judge.

Judge Sam has eight children, including two adopted girls from Guatemala.

Asian-Americans on the increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bolstered by waves of Chinese war refugees, Asians are the fastest-growing segment of America's population and could add nearly 10 million by the year 2000, according to a study released Wednesday.

By the turn of the century, Asian-Americans will comprise almost 4 percent of the U.S. population, up from 1.5 percent in 1980, "according to the projection by the independent Population Reference Bureau."

Three staff members of the Population Institute at the East-West Center in Honolulu conducted the study.

'The Creature' prowls; police suspect a hoax

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Halloween arrived in East Pennsboro Township as far as police are concerned.

A few residents in a rural, wooded area of the township, northwest of Harrisburg, have reported ape-like apparition, which they have dubbed the "creature."

According to Township Police Chief James Cort, the "creature" probably came out of a department store costume shop rather than a dank swamp.

"First reports of a strange beast, a terrible screeching sound and an awful stench, came from five to four people in August, Corbett said. On Oct. 28, police took five reports of the terrible and colorful creature."

One young man claimed to have seen a 6-foot-tall creature, with long fangs and arms that extended below its knees. Three officers were sent to investigate and "one did hear the sound," Corbett said.

Phone service troubles can come in many shapes and sizes.

Sometimes, the culprit is your basic garden-variety squirrel, chewing through the outside lines leading to your home. At other times, the trouble could be with your inside wiring or your telephone.

Whatever the problem, here's the best way to find out what's causing it. Just turn to the Customer Guide section at the front of your White Pages Directory. Under the "Money Saving Tips" heading, easy-to-follow instructions will tell you how to test for the source of your troubles. If, however, your test doesn't locate the problem, call us and we'll test the line for you.

If the problem is in your outside line, we'll come out and fix it free of charge. If you ask for a Mountain Bell repair person to visit your premises, and it's found that the problem is in your telephone set, there will be a charge. Defective phones and equipment must be repaired by the company or dealer that provided them to you.

We'll also repair inside wiring free of charge if you've subscribed to our Wiring Maintenance Plan; otherwise there will be a service charge.

For more information about locating phone service troubles, as well as about our Wiring Maintenance Plan, call your service representative. So no matter what form your troubles take, you can get rid of them right away.

Former BYU student's career leads to return as law teacher

By JOEL CAMPBELL
Universe Staff Writer

Whether it be arguing a case before the United States Supreme Court or leading the student body of BYU, Rex Lee's life has been a string of success stories.

Lee, former solicitor general of the United States, founding dean of the J. Reuben Clark Law School and former BYU student body president, said, "If you work hard and do your best, opportunities will come to you." Reese Hansen, associate dean of the J. Reuben Clark Law School, said Lee is "one of those guys that everything he has done, he has done extremely well."

Lee's accomplishments are no surprise to those who have known him as a top student in high school at St. Johns, Ariz., as an LDS missionary in Mexico or as a 1960 BYU graduate with a 3.97 GPA. Nor would they likely be a surprise to classmates at the University of Chicago Law School where he was valedictorian.

After graduation from law school, Lee was appointed as a legal clerk to U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White. After a year at the high court, he returned to a private law practice in Phoenix.

"In 1971 I was asked to be the dean of the BYU Law School. There was never a more sobering time in my life. My greatest fear was that nobody would come to join the faculty," said Lee.

As founding dean, it was his responsibility to lure faculty and students to the new school.

He said the key to setting up the law school was getting someone who was highly visible to join the faculty. That happened when Carl Hawkins left a full professorship at the University of Michigan Law School to join the law school's faculty.

"When he gathered the first faculty of the law school, he was like King Arthur gathering the knights to Camelot. He sent a call across the land for the finest lawyers and professors," said Bruce Hafen, present dean of the law school.

In 1981, President Ronald Reagan nominated Lee for the United States solicitor general.

The appointment followed two years as the assistant U.S. attorney general under Attorney General Edward H. Levi, during the Ford administration.

As solicitor general, Lee appeared before the United States Supreme Court as the nation's official attorney. He also supervised about 20 lawyers who prepared cases in which the United States was a party or a friend of the court.

"The highlight of the work was arguing cases in the U.S. Supreme Court. Any litigating lawyer's dream is to become one of the government's lawyers," he said.

He stepped down from the position after the customary four years and is now a partner in the national law firm of Sidley and Austin, at its offices in the Washington D.C. area. The firm is one of the six largest in the United States.

He and his family plan to return to Provo this summer, where he will teach part-time at the J. Reuben Clark Law School next fall, while maintaining his affiliation with the law firm.

The arrangement will allow Lee to work on court cases in Provo with periodic visits to the East, where he hopes to work on some Supreme Court cases.

He is the first recipient of the Endowed George Sutherland Chair at the law school and will visit campus on Nov. 19 for the inauguration.

Astronaut Lind to lead BYU parade Saturday

An astronaut will lead students, children, floats, queens and clowns in BYU's Homecoming Parade.

Astronaut Don Lind will be the grand marshal for the parade Saturday. He will present a BYU pennant he took into space to the university during the Homecoming banquet tonight.

The 90-minute parade will begin at 9 a.m. at 700 E. Center Street and will travel west on Center to University Ave. and north to the Smith Fieldhouse parking lot.

Lind and his wife will lead the parade, followed by President Jeffrey R. Holland, Elder Ezra Taft Benson and Elder David B. Haight of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' Council of Twelve.

Also participating will be the Cougar Band and Cougarettes; Miss BYU, Lisle Taylor, and her attendants.

Officials study Maggie's Bend for annexation

SPRINGVILLE (AP) — Spanish Fork and Springville officials are negotiating the future use of the Maggie's Bend area along U.S. 91, a stretch of land that currently lies between the boundaries of the two communities' master plans.

Randy Drummond, a Springville planning and zoning staffer, said his city has no plans to annex the property. However, some Maggie's Bend landowners have considered annexation into Springville.

"Right now, the city has no strategy drawn up for the southern part of town," he said. "But with these negotiations, we're trying to take steps toward that right now."

"But as it stands, we're just going to leave it up to the property owners," Drummond said.

Jump follows dream, finds career

By MICHAEL PURDY
Universe Staff Writer

Although he has gone from premed student to television executive to television star, Gordon Jump has always known what he wanted in life. "I have loved acting since I saw my first movie as a kid," said Jump in an interview with The Daily Universe. Jump is the star of television's "WKRP in Cincinnati" and Master of Ceremonies of this year's Homecoming Spectacular.

The road to an acting career was not a straight one, however. Jump felt there was no security in the entertainment business, so he followed his family's wishes and decided to pursue a career in medicine.

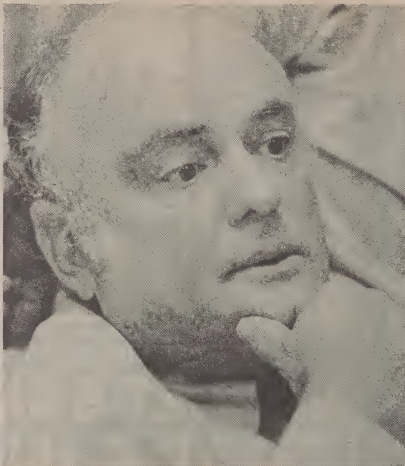

Throughout high school, Jump worked in hospitals to save money for college where he entered his freshman year as a pre-med major.

"After my freshman year I was unsure of my choice," said Jump. "I went into the military for two years in the Medical Corps. It was here that I decided medicine was not for me."

Upon release from the military, Jump entered Kansas State University to study broadcasting. He became a television executive in his hometown of Dayton, Ohio, and although he enjoyed his work, acting was still his passion.

"I realized that if I stayed where I was, I would be behind a desk for the rest of my life," said Jump.

With the support of his wife Anna, he took his family to California where he eventually landed a part on "The Boone Boone Show." Other television appearances followed with roles in "Get Smart," "Bewitched," and "Soap," among others. Jump also appeared in movies including "Troubled Man" and "The Fury" with Kirk Douglas.

Gordon Jump, star of television's "WKRP in Cincinnati" and Master of Ceremonies at this year's Homecoming Spectacular, found the road to an acting career was not a straight one.

Although others consider him a success, Jump does not think so himself.

"Success is leaving behind a legacy," he said. "Something like 'Gone With the Wind,' which is as viable today as a creative piece as it was when it was first released. I am still looking for that role."

Jump considers the work he has done for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, of which he is a member, to be his most rewarding work so far.

"If the videos I have done for the church are used as a teaching tool 25 years from now, then I have tasted some success," he said.

Jump is best known for his role as Arthur Carlson, a radio station manager on "WKRP." "I got the role by pure accident," he laughed. "The producer thought I looked like the guy who had taken him on a tour of a radio station."

Jump considers himself to be a lot like his character on the show. "Probably more than I care to admit," he said. "Not the bumbling part — I'm not that nerdy — but other parts are me."

Drawing from real experiences has helped Jump to develop the characters he has played.

"If other people say you can't do something, and it prevents you from trying, then you didn't deserve it anyway," he said. "You can do something better than anyone else can. If you believe in yourself and pay the price, you ain't gonna be denied."

Determination has placed Jump where he is now, and it is a point he feels strongly about.

"Once in a while I have asked myself 'Why am I doing this?'" he said. "Sometimes your career does not depend on your talent but on an individual's whim."

Although he has never regretted his decision to become an actor, he has had disappointments.

"I would be a role as a child molester if it would teach children how to avoid them," said Jump. "But if the director wanted to create sympathy for the molester that would be distasteful to me. I don't want to promote the negative."

Although he has never regretted his decision to become an actor, he has had disappointments.

Orchestra, choir join in performance reflecting diversity of alumni taste

This year's Homecoming activities will include a "unique" concert presented by the BYU Philharmonic Orchestra and the Concert Choir. Clynn Barrus, director of the Philharmonic, and Mack Wilberg, director of the Concert Choir, have joined together to present a program that, according to them, is designed to reflect the diversity of alumni taste.

The concert will be presented Friday and Saturday evening at 8 in the de Jong Concert Hall.

Wilberg said this is a unique opportunity to see and hear a full choral and orchestral group. "The combining of choral and orchestral groups is not a common event."

The program for the concert will consist of several pieces performed by the individual groups as well as the combined ensembles.

The Philharmonic will perform "Pictures from an Exhibition," by Modest Mussorgsky. This piece was written after Mussorgsky attended an exhibit by the artist Viktor Hartman.

As a rather unique addition to the performance of this piece, images of 10 of Hartman's paintings, and two additional 19th-century paintings, will be projected on a screen behind the performers.

The two groups will close the concert with LeRoy Robertson's arrangement of "Come, Come Ye Saints," which the Mormon Tabernacle Choir has performed on several occasions.

Barrus noted that the groups' performances are not intended to compete with other Homecoming activities, such as the Homecoming Spectacular, but are offered as an additional activity for people visiting campus during Homecoming week.

Redford's daughter marries

SUNDANCE (AP) — Shauna Jean Redford, daughter of actor-director Robert Redford, married the son of an RCA executive in a private ceremony at her parents' central Utah mountain retreat.

Miss Redford, 23, is an art student in New York City and a graduate of the University of Colorado. The groom, Eric Matthew Schlosser, graduated cum laude from Princeton University and expects his master's degree from Oxford University this month. ## Tom Selleck, Enquirer settle inaccuracies out of court

HONOLULU (AP) — Actor Tom Selleck says he is pleased with an out-of-court settlement of a lawsuit he filed against the National Enquirer over two articles, including one that linked him romantically with Victoria Principal.

A statement issued jointly by Selleck's attorney and the Enquirer said there were inaccuracies in articles about Selleck in the spring of 1982.

"There was no romance between Tom Selleck and Victoria Principal," the statement said. "In fact, Mr. Selleck had never met Victoria Principal."

The statement said another article "mischaracterized Tom Selleck's lifestyle" and said the newspaper "regrets the errors in the two articles and apologizes for any embarrassment."

Pass-happy Aztecs to test Cougar 'D'

FRANK MONTAJO JR.
Asst. Sports Editor

The week-long festival of alumni games, receptions, dances, parades and pep rallies constituting BYU's upcoming 1985 culminates Saturday as 65,000-plus screaming blue-white loyals invade Cougar Stadium to watch BYU play San Diego State.

With teams come into the contest, the Aztecs scored on their first drive with a 27-yard field goal, unable to move the ball after. BYU's defense held them to 165 yards total offense, while Cougar offense, behind the pass of Robbie Bosco, tallied 473 total yards en route to the victory.

They look like they always do," Scotti referring to BYU's uniforms this year. "How to stop (Saturday) is a good question. I don't know how we're going to do it."

Maybe not, but it's probable Scotti might fire with fire when his team enters into Cougar Stadium. Sophomore quarterback Todd Santos leads the nation in passing efficiency with a 17 rating. Last week against PAC, passing giant Stanford, Santos led the Aztecs to a 41-22 upset with 18 completions in 24 attempts for 320 yards.

They've solidified a lot in the quarterback position with Santos," said Head Coach LaVell Edwards. "I'll have to be prepared to play one or better games to beat them this year."

Defensively, the Cougars should be strong as ever. Edwards said the defense continues to please him with its performance. "Against CSU, played very well." The coach expressed some relief about the end of the Cougars' kicking game. "You're getting more solidified, on your part, BYU QB Robbie Bosonius to climb up the national rankings with his passing performance. Last Colorado State, he completed 38 of 49 passes with no interceptions for 417 yards and three touchdowns. The feat upped his passing efficiency rating to 151.5 and vaulted him from 14th to eighth nationally in category and to third in total yards.

As a unit, the offense has taken the lead among the nation's college teams in passing yards gained per game. Against CSU, wide receiver Bellini, tight end Trevor Molini, punting back Lakei Heimuli had plays on the receiving end of his aerial circus.

'84 a year of destiny for national champions

By SUSAN FUGE
Universe Sports Writer

1984 was a year of destiny for the BYU Cougars — a year of tremendous achievement through the initiative of an innovative coaching staff and a talented group of athletes.

The team came into 1984 with 11 straight wins to its credit. However, the Cougars weren't ranked in any Top Twenty polls at the start of the season. After their 20-14 victory over third-ranked Pittsburgh, though, the Cougars vaulted to a No. 8 ranking.

Quarterback Robbie Bosco took time to warm up in the season opener against Pitt, but he heated up when he came out of the locker room at half-time. Bosco quickly completed four out of five passes and then finished the game, completing 25 of 43 passes for 325 yards and one touchdown.

"He just needed time to warm up. He is going to fall in line with all the other great Brigham Young quarterbacks," said Pittsburgh free safety Bill Callahan.

BYU's defense contributed heavily to the win — a portent of things to come.

"I don't think we've ever had a better defensive performance," said BYU Head Coach LaVell Edwards.

Sept. 8 in Provo, the Cougars gave Baylor its worst defeat in five years — a 47-13 whipping. BYU moved up two notches in the AP poll.

The Cougars scored touchdowns on their first five possessions and gained 209 yards rushing and 315 passing, while the defense shut down Baylor with four interceptions.

With 13 straight wins behind them, the Cougars held the longest current winning streak in the nation.

The players started talking about the national championship.

"We think we've got a shot at the national championship. That's the feeling on the team," said Glen Kozlowski. "That's the feeling on the team, that we're undefeated."

The 38-15 win over Tulsa the next Saturday boosted the Cougars to No. 4 in the AP poll.

The game against Tulsa was not a good one for the BYU offense, finishing with only 389 yards. For the game, BYU's defense allowed only three field goals and one touchdown.

"The attitude is changing here. We don't want to be just a second thought at BYU," said BYU's defensive end Jim Herrmann.

A difficult win over Hawaii on Sept. 22 moved the Cougars down to No. 3 in the poll.

A combination of jet-lag, a late night game and injuries plagued BYU in their 18-13 defeat of Hawaii. Bosco's groin pull, back, numerous bruises and the fact he was sacked six times hampered his performance. He completed only 15 of 33 passes for 264 yards.

With 5:24 left in the game, Bosco threw a touchdown pass to Kozlowski to salvage the win.

The Cougars had a much needed two-week rest after the Hawaii game. Then on Oct. 6, they routed Colorado State 52-9. Coming into the Colorado State game, BYU was ranked No. 6, but the victory moved them up to No. 5.

BYU gained 616 yards total offense to CSU's 291 and had only one turnover. Bosco completed 16 of 21 passes for 246 yards, no interceptions, and ran two yards for a touchdown before sitting out the last half of the game.

"We talked about it, and we decided to take it upon ourselves to protect Robbie. We didn't want him to get banged up anymore. Plus, we wanted to get our reputation back. We think we're the best offensive line in the nation," said offensive guard Craig Garrick.

The Cougars went down to No. 7 after a close call against Wyoming. The 41-38 victory was BYU's 17th consecutive and tied the school record.

The defense had its first bad game of the season against Wyoming. The Cowboys gained 478 yards against BYU when their average was under 300 yards per game.

With 8:42 left and a score of 38-33 for Wyoming, the offense finally got rolling and brought the score up to 41-38.

Linebacking corps a solid defensive wall

By FRANK MONTAJO JR.
Asst. Sports Editor

The quarterback tradition at BYU is long and storied. Names like Virgil Carter, Gary Scheide, Mark Wilson, Jim McMahon, Steve Young and Robbie Bosco roll off Cougar fans' tongues with an ease bred of familiarity.

They're the ones who've established, with their rifle arms and fancy feet, one of the greatest passing attacks in college football history.

But does the name Rod Wood ring a bell? What about Gary Kama and Glen Redd? Surely, Todd Shell and Kyle Whittingham are familiar, at least in Happy Valley.

Still don't have a clue? All of them were part of BYU's other solid, but largely unsung tradition, the defense. Specifically, they were the defense's jacks of all trade — the linebackers.

Each had an excellent career with the Cougars, some making the grade afterwards in the pros. Currently, Redd is a linebacker with the New Orleans Saints and Shell, a first-round draft choice in 1983, plays for the NFL champions San Francisco 49ers.

"They're (BYU's linebackers) the best I've seen since I've been here," — Bruce Arians — Temple head coach

"They're the best linebackers I've ever seen since I've been here," said Temple Head Coach Bruce Arians. Quite a statement from a coach whose team is used to running into linebacker factories like Penn State and Pittsburgh.

All four epitomize the jack-of-all-trade label accorded linebackers. They must be able to defend against the pass and stop an opposing team's rushing attack. An interception or fumble recovery turns them instantly into running backs. Before the snap, they receive signals from the sideline for the entire defensive squad and are responsible for directing defensive movements like stunts and blitzes. About the only thing they don't do is pass the football.

"They rank up there with Todd Shell as the best that ever played here," — Ken Schmidt — BYU linebacker coach

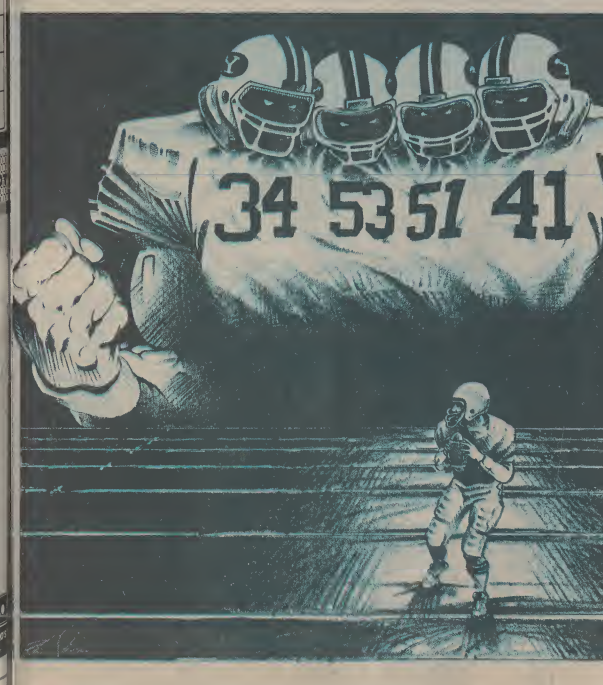

"They're very solid," said Claude Basset, one of BYU's two linebackers coaches. "They're quick enough to cover receivers and very physical on the run."

What's more, the four complement each other very well, Basset said. "There is a great camaraderie among them."

Perhaps their biggest asset, however, is the experience they have. Only Akeo has been a starter less than two years.

White and Gouveia, who play on the outside of BYU's 3-4 defense, are two of the best in the nation at their positions, said Outside Linebacker Coach Ken Schmidt. "They rank up there with Todd Shell as the best that ever played here."

As for Whittingham and Akeo, Basset says they are intelligent, physical players that can be dominating forces in any game. "They compare favorably with any other linebackers we've had since we switched to the 3-4."

No. 1 ranking culminates season

"When the pressure was on we were able to make the plays," said Edwards. A tough victory over Air Force moved the Cougars back up into the No. 5 slot in the AP poll.

At the half, BYU had a 14-9 lead. Bosco's 36-yard touchdown pass to Kelly Smith at the start of the second half gave BYU a 21-9 lead. Then the Falcons managed to close the gap to 21-19. BYU retaliated with a pass play and moved the score to 27-19. With 10 minutes left, Air Force scored on a two-yard run to make it 27-25. In the final minutes of the game, BYU settled for a 17-yard field goal, and the game ended at 30-25.

BYU tied the conference record with their 19th straight victory — a whopping 48-0 win over New Mexico on Oct. 25. That win put the Cougars at the No. 4 spot in the nation.

The game against UTEP on Nov. 3 wasn't much more exciting than the New Mexico game. BYU clinched the WAC title for the ninth-straight year with the 42-9 victory.

"Now that our No. 1 goal is taken care of (winning the WAC) we can set others.

We can zero in on possibilities down the road. . . . We definitely have a shot at the national title. We're in a good spot now," said Edwards.

The week after winning the WAC, Edwards sensed a let-down in practice, so he called the team together for a pep talk and then sent them out to destroy San Diego State 34-3. The win put the Cougars at No. 3 in the wire service polls and at No. 1 in Sports Illustrated.

On Nov. 17th, BYU fought its way to a 24-14 win over Utah, catapulting the team to No. 1.

Utah came on strong in the first quarter and scored a touchdown for a 7-0 lead, but Bosco brought BYU back with a series of short passes that turned into a touchdown before the quarter ended.

The half concluded with the score at 10-7 after Utah's defense forced the Cougars to settle for a field goal. In the second half, BYU scored on a 93-yard drive. Then the Utes retaliated with an 11-yard touchdown pass. BYU made its final touchdown on a four-yard rollout pass to Kelly Smith with 7:26 left in the game.

The Cougars had a difficult game against Utah State. Not until the third quarter did BYU finally manage to control the game and pull away from the Aggies.

On Dec. 21 the Cougars concluded the season with their final victory — a 24-17 win over Michigan in the Holiday Bowl, icing the national championship. BYU became only the third school in college history to finish a season 13-1.

The victory didn't come easily. The Cougars had turnovers and numerous penalties, but the defense kept BYU in the game by allowing Michigan 202 yards total offense and forcing the Wolverines to settle for two field goals during serious scoring threats.

In the first quarter, Michigan's Mike Hammerstein hit Bosco low, causing knee and ankle injuries. Bosco returned to the game in the second quarter and played with the pain for the rest of the game.

Bosco and the team finally came alive in the fourth quarter. He completed 10 of 12 passes for 143 yards and led BYU on TD drives of 80 and 83 yards ending with scoring passes of 7 yards to Kozlowski and 13 yards to Smith.

For the game, Bosco completed 30 of 42 passes for 343 yards.

Former Y catcher signs with Boston

By MARK FLETCHER
Senior Reporter

While most people can eat hot dogs and apple pie, only about 1 percent of the nation's best athletes get to live the third part of the classic American dream.

Keith Harrison, former catcher for the BYU men's baseball team, recently entered that elite 1 percent when he inked a contract with the Boston Red Sox.

The contract will pay Harrison $700 a month, the starting pay for all first-year players, and will send him to a minor league team for spring training.

"They did give me a bonus and some incentives to play," said Harrison. "In the spring I'll go to Winterhaven, Fla., for a month. Then I'll either stay there or go to New Haven Conn., another minor league team."

New players go to teams rated from A to AAA before entering the major leagues.

"Keith did an outstanding job on our catching corps, but he competed more as a designated hitter," said BYU head coach Gary Pullins.

After finishing his college career, Harrison went to Salt Lake and played for the Trappers — a minor league — but, was dropped from the squad after one month.

"It was good experience and a lot of fun," said Harrison. "It was nice to get a taste of professional baseball."

The Red Sox contacted Harrison before his sojourn with the Trappers, but he didn't hear anything after the initial visit. The interest and offer of a contract came as a pleasant surprise.

"Ever since I was a little boy I wanted to play major league baseball," said Harrison. "It's exciting to get a break with an organization."

"Them coming to me takes a whole lot of the pressure off," said Harrison. "I can't wait to go to spring training and win myself a job."

Big contests abound on college grid slate

By TOM WALTON
and FRANK MONTOYA, Jr.
Sports Editors

It's gut-check time for the editors as this weekend's action has no less than five battles between schools in the Top 20. Look for the Cougars to make a dramatic climb in the polls should they defeat San Diego State.

On the year, Frank jumped into the lead with a sterling 6-1-1 mark last week, giving him a 31-13 season total. Tom trails at 29-15-1.

San Diego State at BYU: If the Aztecs are truly WAC title contenders, now is the time to make their move. However, SDSU has a history of self-destruction against the Cougars, and both editors predict BYU will win. Tom says the margin will be 14, while Frank looks for a 7-point Cougar victory.

Utah at Arizona State: The Utes take to the road for their first '85 game on a natural surface. The Sun Devils have not allowed any points at home this year, shutting out Pacific and USC. Frank thinks the Utes will continue their roll and win by a field goal, but Tom picks ASU to hand Utah a 10-point loss.

Colorado State at New Mexico: In the key of perennial haters, Tom goes with the Lobos by a point, while Frank picks the Rams by a field goal.

Women's team hosts youngster on soccer block

The BYU women's soccer team plays Western State College, a newcomer to the game, on Friday.

"It's a chance for us to help someone build their program," said Cougar head coach Steve Asay. "We don't expect much problem with this one."

WSC, from Benison, Colo., is grateful for the chance to have BYU on their schedule this premiere season, said Asay.

The Cougars were 1-2 on last week's Colorado road trip.

Hawaii at Wyoming: Coming into the season with great expectations, Hawaii and Wyoming have stumbled to 0-3-1 and 1-4 records, respectively. Since the game is in Laramie, Wyo., the Cowboys should win by either one point (Tom) or seven points (Frank).

Air Force at Navy: No one is flying higher in college football than the Falcons. While they might suffer a let down after their emotional win over Notre Dame, it won't cost them the contest against the lowly Midshipmen. Tom takes the AFA by 3, and Frank ups the margin to 7.

Oklahoma at Texas: This is one of football's greatest rivalries, but all the horses are in the Sooner stables this year, so it seems. Tom predicts the Sooners by 10, but Frank chooses a one-point Longhorn upset.

Florida State at Auburn: The editors go with Bo Jackson and the Tigers by a field goal.

Nebraska at Oklahoma State: Tom and Frank predict a 7-point Cornhusker win.

Tennessee at Florida: The Gators bring the Vols back to reality with a 6-point victory.

Alabama at Penn State: The editors disagree on this one, but both predict a 3-point spread. Tom goes with the home-standing Nittany Lions, while Frank picks the Crimson Tide will roll.

State lawyers seek to recover losses from Feelin' Great, Inc.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Division of Consumer Protection has amended its lawsuit against 21 leaders of Feelin' Great, Inc., and now seeks to recover the money people paid to participate in the firm's self-improvement program.

Previously, the state sought only an injunction barring the Florida-based firm from further operation and a judgment that the business was a pyramid scheme, said Assistant Attorney General Steven G. Schwendmann.

After authorities raided a Feelin' Great meeting at the Excelsior Hotel in Provo, 4th District Judge George Ballif issued a restraining order on Sept. 4.

On Sept. 25, the judge issued a preliminary injunction against further business operations until the case is resolved.

Schwendmann said the division is now seeking to have the case declared a class action and is attempting to recover actual damages for those who lost money.

In the new complaint, the state says Feelin' Great charged people $6,000 for the right to earn money by introducing others to the four-step motivational program, then persuading them to become salesmen.

No specific dollar amounts have been requested, Schwendmann said. Instead, the state is asking for a judgment for those damaged by the alleged scheme and "such other and additional relief as the court may deem appropriate under the circumstances."

Meanwhile, attorneys for Feelin' Great said they would ask the Utah Supreme Court to dissolve the preliminary injunction and an earlier temporary restraining order.

"We don't think this is a pyramid scheme, and we don't think the injunction was granted properly."

Fourth Alumfest to follow game

Includes showcase, booths, music

The end of the fourth quarter in Saturday's game will not signal the end of Homecoming celebrations.

Alumni, students, faculty and friends of BYU will celebrate at the fourth annual Alumfest following the game.

The free, post-game Homecoming party is an informal social that will take place on the lawn south of the stadium.

A gourmet hamburger buffet will be available. The buffet is $6, and tickets may be purchased at the booth or beforehand at the Alumni House.

A "Football Showcase" housed in a tent will include photos of past and present seasons and a viewing of the video "The Rise to Number One," highlighting the 1984 national championship season.

Music for the party will be provided by the Alumni Cougar Band, Synthesis and a bluegrass group called "Arden Wire," said Janita Andersen, coordinator of the Alumfest.

The party is designed to give fans the opportunity to meet with some of the alumni of BYU and to mingle with some of the players and coaches of the football team, said Andersen.

The Alumni Association will also set up booths for fans to look through old yearbooks, learn about the Aspen Grove Family Camp's year-round activities and update alumni records.

INTRODUCING

Brigham Young University

COACH OF THE YEAR

From janitor to U.S. senator

Orrin Hatch credits BYU for helping him reach potential

By ED WRIGHT
Senior Reporter

Senator Orrin Hatch came from the halls of BYU, where he pushed a broom at night, and ended up in Congress. He credits his LDS Church mission and university experiences for laying the intellectual groundwork for his life.

Hatch said he is indebted to the university for two reasons: "I met my wife at BYU. She has been a great anchor as she has helped me through our 28 years together. Between intellectual advancement and meeting my wife, I will always be indebted to BYU."

"When I attended the university, I was very poor," Hatch said. "I was very proud of the values my parents instilled in me, however.

"At BYU, I learned to rise above the difficult early life I had. I was taught we can achieve anything in life if we try. I learned to study and to work. I gained a great respect for knowledge here," he said.

"There is not a greater BYU fan than me. I'm so proud of how the institution builds the all-around worth of the student," said Hatch.

When he attended the dedication of the David M. Kennedy International Center this month, Hatch said he was amazed at the worldwide nature of the BYU campus. The worldwide campus is a tribute to the vision of the church and the foresight of its leaders, he said.

As a young man, Hatch apprenticed in the AFL-CIO as a metal lather to help fund his undergraduate studies and law school. After he graduated from BYU in 1959, he attended the University of Pittsburgh Law School on a full scholarship.

He received his Juris Doctor degree in 1962 and then practiced law in Pittsburgh until his return to Utah in 1969. He ran for public office for the first time in 1978.

His challenge of three-term incumbent U.S. Senator Frank "Ted" Moss proved successful. Shock waves rippled through Utah and national politics after he received 54 percent of the vote.

Since his election, he hasn't looked back. Columnist Jack Anderson calls Hatch one of the 10 most effective senators. Senator Edwin Muskie says, "Hatch's performance on the Senate floor commands respect and attracts friends."

Camilla Kimball's life full of accomplishments

By JUDY DAVIS
Universe Staff Writer

Like many coeds today, Camilla Eyring Kimball, wife of LDS Church President Spencer W. Kimball, and former student at Brigham Young Academy, once counted every penny she had and agonized over her wardrobe.

Sister Kimball came to Provo in 1912 where she lived with her uncle, Carl Eyring. She worked part time doing domestic chores while completing her high school education and studying home economics at Brigham Young Academy.

While attending the academy, Sister Kimball studied diligently and received high grades in all her classes. She received a teaching certificate in home economics. Other experiences at the academy, Sister Kimball said, during a 1980 BYU Devotional assembly, "The two years I spent here made a lasting impression on my life, and I developed an ever-increasing love and appreciation for this great school." Her future plans were to attend Johns Hopkins University.

It was then, she met President Spencer W. Kimball and married him. "That kept me from finishing my specific educational goal. But it did not stop my learning, because regular schooling is just one of the ways of becoming educated," she said.

Sister Kimball has received many awards, including the Exemplary Womanhood Award presented by the ASBYU Women's Office in February of 1977. Sister Kimball also delivered the keynote address during the three-day Women's Conference. It was during this address that Sister Kimball told students to "take full advantage of this university, remembering that your education is a treasure over which you are custodian, with a responsibility to use it for good, unselfishly."

She was awarded an honorary doctoral degree from the University of Utah in 1981 in recognition of her devotion to education.

Sister Kimball has received the Ka Hoo Pono Award from BYU Hawaii, the honorary Golden Gleanery from the LDS Church's YWMA and has been recognized by Ricks College as an exemplary Latter-day Saint woman.

In 1982, BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland officially inaugurated the Camilla Eyring Kimball Chair of Home and Family Life. At that time it was the first endowed chair at the university—and reportedly in the state of Utah—to be named in honor of a woman.

According to an article in California Intermountain News, the endowed chair's purpose is to honor Sister Kimball for her dedication to the nurturing and perfecting of families and to provide continuing funds for research and visiting professorships at BYU in the field of family life.

Woman. The bank sent three employees to assist, Jarvis said.

Most of the money—$2,000—was found, part in some bushes, part under a bridge.

She returned to the area Tuesday morning with some friends to continue the search, but couldn't find the three missing $100 bills. She said a bank official agreed to split the difference.

Furry-faced firefighters receive order to shave

SECAUCUS, N.J. (AP) — Firefighters have been ordered to give themselves close shaves by a safety-minded volunteer company chief who says beards invite danger.

Chief George Heflich said Tuesday eight bearded firefighters face dismissal if they don't shave. "The only reason we're doing it is for their own safety and the safety of the other firefighters," Heflich said of his directive.

"I'm trying to save lives. It (injury or death) hasn't happened yet. Maybe it won't happen for 100 years. But we're looking out for the safety of all firefighters," said Heflich.

He said oxygen masks don't fit properly over beards. As a result, a 30-minute supply of oxygen could be depleted in as fast as eight minutes.

Firefighter Dennis Mangin, 27, said he thinks Heflich's order is unfair.

Hungarians find ten-year-olds are trying drugs

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Some 10-year-olds are abusing drugs, and 30,000 Hungarians have misused them at some point, the state-run MTI news agency said.

The news agency's dispatch said Wednesday that there are between 300 and 1,500 known drug addicts in the nation of about 10 million people.

According to surveys, the 10-14 age group is trying drugs for the first time.

Pep leaders tell loyal Cougar fans: Be there and be blue at the game

On Saturday, Brigham Young University's Cougar Stadium will be full of noise and enthusiasm — and hope-fully blue.

"We want to paint the stadium blue," said Troy Adams, pep squad coordinator. "We want everyone to dress in 'Cougar Blue' for the Homecoming football game and for every game after that."

"Like the wave, if only a few do it, it doesn't look as good," said Adams.

"People have already noticed how noisy Cougar fans are. The television announcers for the BYU-Washington game commented that they couldn't believe 65,000 people stayed to watch, even when their team was so much in control," Adams said.

Saturday's Homecoming game will be played against San Diego State.
